New York, March 9 .- William Loeb, jr., former secretary to President Roosevelt, was sworn in to-day as collector of the port, succeeding Col. E. S. Fowler, who had served only fifteen months. Mr. Loeb took the oath before Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court.

The new collector, with two or three of his friends, went at once to the custom-house, where Col. Fowler was waiting to receive him. On the surface, at least, the meeting between Mr. Loeb and his predecessor was most cordial.

Col. Fowler shook hands with the new collector and then led him into the collector's private office. The two were in conference about ten minutes, and when they came out again about 100 officers who will serve under Mr. Loeb were gathered in the big reception room. Col. Fowler read this speech:

Fowler Reads His Speech.

"Gentlemen of the Customs Service: We have reached another step in the affairs of the port. The collector is changed, but the work of good administration will go | Harvard Club. on. In retiring from the office of collector, I look you in the eyes for the last time, and while bidding you an affectionhave so cheerfully given me in the last fifteen months. No more unselfish and capable officers ever rendered service to the government. The new collector is a man of large experience, who began at the bottom of the ladder. I wish him success in the office, and ask you to give him the same loyal support you have accorded me."

Turning to Mr. Loeb, the collector shook hands with him again and wished and shook hands with the new man. Mr. not want that condition to prevail.

President Taft has never had any idea of shortening Surveyor Clarkson's term, and he has had little patience with New York State Republicans who wanted Surveyor Clarkson's place at once. It may turn out that Gen. Clarkson, if he retires from the surveyorship at the end of his term, will be requested to remain in the service of the administration, either in Washington or in New York.

Collector Loeb will be one of the guests and reach the Atlantic districts about Friday. This cold ware will carry the line of freezing temperature almost to the Gulf carry the line of freez of shortening Surveyor Clarkson's term,

In a charming lyric spirit, touching vibrantly upon the lighter moods of life, Mrs. Ella H. Melvin sang songs of her own composition before the United Circle of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church last evening.

Benedict Well will shortly begin the erection of a handsome three-story brick house of colonial design on the east side of St. Asaph street, between King and Prince streets. Plans for the structure have been completed by Architect Milton Dana Morrill.

C. J. Blanchard, of the Reclamation of the Merchant of the most good-for-nothing sort, and every time I saw her down the river with three or four men of the most good-for-nothing sort, and every time I saw her she had a new one. Some day you may thank me for what I have done. If you want to keep your good name, you must not go with her. If I ever found out that you were going to marry for a nice young man like you. Mr. Meller, you can believe my would be sorry. She is not good enough for a nice young man like you, Mr. Meller, you can believe my would be sorry. She is not good enough for a nice young man like you, Mr. Meller, you would be sorry. She is not good enough for a nice young man like you, Mr. Meller, you do, and an telling you the truth. I see you going to church every Sunday. You will be sorry if I ever found out that you were going to marry for a nice young man like you, Mr. Meller, you would be sorry.
